Sensory Processing Disorder: Making the Connection
Susan Jackson, Nationally Accredited Family Child Care Provider

Many children with sensory processing issues start out as fussy babies who become anxious preschoolers. These children may have frequent meltdowns or have issues with the way clothing feels. So, what is Sensory Processing Disorder? Join Susan as she looks at the symptoms of SPD and several ways to help children deal with it in the childcare setting. During this fun and active workshop, Susan will show several things she uses to help with meltdowns and issues.

Pre-K & Kindergarten Readiness Skills Using Free, Dollar Tree, and the CCRC
Gina Grouby

This workshop will offer simple ideas on helping preschool aged children prepare for skills needed to be successful in a pre-k or kindergarten program. Objectives for development and learning will focus in the areas of literacy and math. Special emphasis will be placed on fun ways to help children recognize and spell their name, letter names and sounds, counting and connecting numerals with their quantities. There will be lots of fun examples and some mane-and-take ideas to make learning engaging and meaningful.
